Governor Togiola offers apology for increased hospital fees;

Says voters need to elect lawmakers who will act on measures that benefit the territory.

Governor Togiola Tulafono has publicly apologized to the community about the hike in fees at the LBJ Hospital, and he suggested that voters need to elect lawmakers who will vote on measures that benefit the territory, like bills meant to provide much needed funding for the territory's only hospital.

The new facility rate increases at the LBJ Medical Center will take effect on May 21.

Togiola said during his weekend radio program, in response to a caller, that the LBJ has no other choice. He explained that the original fee hike that was set to take effect earlier this year was reversed, to give his office and the Fono time to work on legislation that could aid the hospital financially.

The administration proposed that certain excise taxes and business license fees should be increased. The Governor maintains that this would have been the best solution, as everyone would pay their fair share. He explained that the LBJ is not a private medical center, as it is owned by the government and therefore, it is the government that needs to provide funds for the hospital – funds that are derived from government revenues. And if there is no new money coming in, ASG will have no choice but to reach out to the community, through increased taxes and fees that will go directly towards helping the hospital.

The proposal didn't get far, as local companies strongly opposed the taxes and fee hikes as a funding source for the hospital, arguing that such a move would increase the cost of goods, and it is the local residents who will suffer from it.

Aside from this, Togiola pointed out that locals cannot afford off-island medical care, and this is the reason why the Fono was asked to approve the measure for $10 million which was also intended for Medicaid matching funds,

FEMA provides nearly $3 million for Futiga and Leone road projects

Road projects for the villages of Futiga and Leone have been awarded nearly $3 million from the Federal Emergency Management Agency's (FEMA) Hazard Mitigation Grant Program.

Congressman Faleo-

mavaega Eni said FEMA's approval of these grants "underscore the federal government's commitment to help strengthen our roads and infrastructure in light of the devastation of the 2009 tsunami."

The Leone Road Mitigation Project has a price of a little over $1.1 million with the federal government funding $1.02 million or 90% of the total amount. The proposed work will commence at the

“Nurses: Advocating Leading, Caring”

Lt. Governor Faoa Sunia, along with the American Nurses Association and the American Samoa Nurses Association have proclaimed the week of May 6-11 as National Nurses Week 2012, in celebration of the ways in which professional licensed nurses strive to provide safe and high quality patient care and map out the way to improve our health care system.

In the proclamation, Faoa points out that 3.1 registered nurses in the United States and the nearly 183 licensed nurses in American Samoa comprise the largest health care profession, and the depth and breadth of the nursing profession meets the different and emerging health care needs of the American Samoa population in a wide range of settings.

The American Samoa Nurses Association, as the voice for all nurses of this territory, is working to chart a new course for a healthy country that relies on increasing delivery of primary and preventive health care.

“A renewed emphasis on primary and preventive health care will require the better utilization of all of our territory’s nursing resources, and professional nursing has been demonstrated to be an indispensable component on the safety and quality of care of hospitalized patients,” the proclamation says. “The demand for licensed nursing services will be greater than ever because of the aging of our territory’s population, the continuing expansion of life-sustaining technology, and the explosive growth of home health care services.”

More qualified licensed nurses will be needed in the future to meet the increasing complex needs of health care consumers in this community, and the cost-effective, safe and quality health care services provided by licensed nurses will be an ever more important component of American Samoa’s health care delivery system in the future.

Faoa is calling on the territory’s residents to join him in honoring the nurses who care for all of us, and celebrate the nurses’ accomplishments and efforts to improve our health care system and show our appreciation for our nurses not just this week, but at every opportunity throughout the year.

meaning the LBJ could get more Medicaid funds which can be used to pay for other medical services.

(The Senate did not approve the proposed bill with a vote of 9-4. In addition, the Senate also rejected the administration bill seeking a loan of $8 million from the ASG Employees’ Retirement Fund for LBJ operations. Both bills noted identical funding sources – the increase in excise taxes and business license fees, $2,000 corporate franchise tax, and a new 4% wage tax).

The House amended the legislation calling for $10 million so it would have collected about $2 million annually, but the changes were not supported by the Senate. Togiola says he would have supported the change but the Senate rejected it altogether.

The Governor says it is vital that there is enough money for the referral program, as the latest report shows that more than 50 patients need to travel off-island for medical care.

The Governor is hopeful that there will be a bright outcome for the hospital when the Fono reconvenes in July for its fourth and final session. Togiola is urging the community to talk to their faipules and senators for their support in these matters.

He says there are lawmakers who continuously reject good legislations that benefit the public. He says these lawmakers can be replaced with people who want to do good things for the community. Togiola says that all he can do is reach out to the public to talk to their Fono representatives and vote in good people who will act on things that are beneficial for the people of the territory.

Gov. Togiola excited about 2012 IFAF Under-19 World Championship in Austin, Texas; American Samoa vs USA June 30

Governor Togiola Tulafono announced on April 28, 2012 from North Carolina, where he was taking part in a Governors Education Symposium, that he had been informed by the International Federation of American Football that the schedule and seeds for the 2012 IFAF Under-19 World Championship in Austin, Texas at the end of June have been released.

The American Samoa Under-19 team, who qualified to be the Oceania representative after defeating Australia in February in Brisbane, will join the eight-team competition that includes Austria, Canada, France, Japan, Panama, Sweden and the United States. The tournament will be played over five days between June 30 and July 7 at Burger Stadium in Austin. The U.S. won the tournament in 2009.

Governor Togiola said American Samoa's first game will be against the U.S. on June 30, and in making their debut in the World Championship, he is ecstatic and welcomes the challenge.

"This is great news for American Samoa. We have been working hard to be included in this IFAF tournament and we are very excited for our boys and their preparation in training," said Governor Togiola. "I believe our team is ready and I anticipate a good game against the U.S. There is much to gain from our participation at the tournament for our players and coaches. This will be a wonderful experience."

May is National Wetlands Month in American Samoa

"Preservation Builds Generations"

Governor Togiola Tulafono has proclaimed the month of May as National Wetlands Month, and he is calling on the territory's residents to join the Department of Commerce and the American Samoa Coastal Management Program in observing this month with appropriate activities and programs.

Wetlands are a vital component to the quality of life in American Samoa, as they function to capture and hold flood waters so that life and property are not damaged. According to the proclamation, wetlands help to recharge ground water supplies, and take up and utilize pollutants prior to their entrance into the sea.

"Wetlands provide a safe and nutrient-rich environment for young fish and shell fish, thereby ensuring a continuous supply of fish in the sea," the proclamation notes. "Wetlands provide a habitat for diverse plant and animal populations.....and have been utilized for generations and generations of Samoans to cultivate taro."

Coastal wetlands act as a buffer during times of storms. The health, prosperity, and culture of American Samoa are dependent on functional wetlands systems, and local residents are encouraged to protect, preserve, and responsibly manage their wetlands.

The American Samoa Coastal Management Program was established to coordinate community efforts in the protection of wetlands for the welfare of the American Samoa people.

Both road projects will include the replacement of utility poles and overhead copper and fiber cable with the underground construction of conduits and vaults.

Faleomavaega commended Governor Togiola Tulafono and his administration for their efforts in pursuing these federal grants which are intended to develop hazard mitigation measures that are vital in reducing losses during future disasters in American Samoa.

HISTORICAL NOTES

By: Stan Sorensen, Historian, Office of the Governor

On April 16, 1997, Secretary of the Interior Bruce Babbitt dedicated the National Park of American Samoa (NPAS), in ceremonies held at Vatia. The ceremonies were attended by Governor Tauese P.F. Sunia, Lieutenant Governor Togiola T.A. Tulafono and other cabinet members, and by Western Samoa's Head of State, His Highness Malietoa Tanumafili II.

On April 17, 1960, on the 60th anniversary of Flag Day, American Samoa's new flag was hoisted for the first time. For many years, American Samoa did not have an official flag. "Then, in the 1950s, the Office of the Governor solicited ideas for a flag from the local citizens. These were screened by the traditional leaders in Executive Council and a final design was worked out by the Institute of Heraldry of the U.S. Army."

On April 17, 1973, the Official Seal of American Samoa, with the motto "Samoa Muamua le Atua" ("Samoa, Let God be First") was dedicated on the 73rd anniversary of Flag Day.

On April 20, 1960, a convention met "with the use of the Samoan language throughout," to draft a constitution for American Samoa. "Each of the 68 members of the convention, representing the ranking leadership of every section of the territory and selected by village and district councils according to custom and tradition, spoke and debated on the issues facing the convention."

On April 25, 1900, American Samoa's Governor, Commander Benjamin Franklin Tilley, paid another visit to Manu'a, as the Manu'ans had "expressed to me a strong desire to have the American flag hoisted over their island." Accordingly, Tilley presented them with their own flag, "which they wished to hoist themselves."

On May 3, 1865, Henry Francis Bryan, American Samoa's 16th naval governor (March 17, 1925-September 9, 1927).

On May 4, 1897, Phelps von Rottenburg, who later changed his name to Phelps Phelps and became American Samoa's first appointed civil governor on February 23, 1951, was born in Bonn, Germany to Dr. Franz von Rottenburg and Marian Phelps von Rottenburg.

On May 5, 1768, French navigator Louis-Antoine de Bougainville, aboard La Boudense and accompanied by L'Étoile, sighted the Samoan islands. Impressed by the Samoans' ship handling skills, he named the archipelago "The Navigator Islands," and they were known by that name for over a century. Bougainville compared the Samoans to the Tahitians by saying that "I do not believe these islanders are as gentle as our Cythereans. Their appearance was more savage, and they displayed far more mistrust."

On May 7, 1901, Frank James Cooper, a two-time Oscar-winning actor (Sergeant York, 1941; High Noon, 1952) who later changed his name to Gary Cooper, was born in Helena, Montana. Cooper starred in the 1953 film Return to Paradise, which was directed by Mark Robson and was filmed at Lefaga, Western Samoa.

On May 8, 1892, the first Samoan Catholic Priest, Father Ioane Tofe, was ordained at Vaea, 'Upolu by Bishop Jean-Armand Lamaze, Vicar Apostolic of Central Oceania and Administrator of Samoa.

On May 8, 1942, USS Sumner arrived in Western Samoa with military supplies and equipment. She investigated Vaialele, Fagaloa and Saluafata Bays for possible use as naval facilities.

Tax Office Recognizes ASCC Business Students

Between January and April of this year, 18 Business students from the American Samoa Community College (ASCC) volunteered to work at the Tax Office to assist members of the public who needed help filing their taxes.

Last week, Tax Office auditor Maryjane Olo visited the ASCC campus to present these students with certificates of appreciation on behalf of Tax Office Manager Melvin Joseph and the rest of the department.

"For the past five years, ASCC Business students have assisted us; but this year, we had more of them than ever before," said Olo before calling each student forward to receive his/her certificate. "In a program which benefits both the Tax Office and the College, this time the students exceeded our expectations." Olo pointed out that even though the students were each required to spend 20 hours assisting the public with tax filing, many chose to continue their service well past that. In fact, student Ruta Lealasila spent a total of 60 hours working at the Tax Office.

The students volunteered their time as part of the Service Learning Project of their Payroll & Taxation class. "Helping the public file their taxes gives the students an opportunity to develop effective communication and management skills by handling many different situations and circumstances," said Business Department Chairperson Dr. Faofua Fa'atoafe. "They also develop competency with the necessary technology and learn to use teamwork to solve problems and bring about results."

ASCC Service Learning Coordinator Elisapeta Fa'alafi-Jones reminded Business students that knowledge becomes most valuable when combined with experience. "We need young men and women who understand what goes on out in the community," she said. "It's very commendable for our students to provide this service, but I also give credit to the Tax Office for giving them the opportunity to gain this experience. Effective Service Learning depends on those we serve being willing to receive us. By spending many more hours than they needed to at the Tax Office, these students have shown not only how willing they are to learn, but also how their hearts are with the community."

The ASCC Business Department has long strived to combine classroom learning with experience in the outside world.
